Biographical/Historical Note: Daughter of William Joy Magrath, a native of Charleston, S.C. who was the president of the South Carolina Railroad from 1862 to 1878. In 1871 he married Selina Emily Bollin, daughter of Charles J. Bollin of Columbia, S.C. William J. Magrath's brother, A.G. Magrath, was elected governor of South Carolina in 1864. The South Carolina Railroad was reorganized in 1881 as the South Carolina Railway Company.

Scope and Content: Papers consist of correspondence, genealogical information, and other items. Most of these papers are transcriptions of original documents.

Typewritten transcriptions of correspondence (1865-1889) includes a letter (1865 March 18) from William J. Magrath to his brother Governor A.G. Magrath mainly concerning the destruction of the railroads in Columbia (S.C.) wrought by General Sherman's army; a letter (1878) from William J. Magrath to his wife concerning family matters and litigation regarding the South Carolina Railroad; letters (1876-1889) to W.J. Magrath concerning the South Carolina Railroad and his service to it; letters (1865 Nov.) from A.G. Magrath, a prisoner at Fort Pulaski (Ga.), to his brother William J. Magrath, concerning prison conditions and family matters, and to W.H. Seward and President Andrew Johnson, concerning parole for Magrath and other matters.

Other items include a typewritten transcription of a tribute (1880) to Theodore D. Wagner by W.J. Magrath; biographical sketches of William J. Magrath; handwritten transcriptions excerpts from reports of the South Carolina Railroad (1864-1873); and Selina Bollin Magrath's reminiscences (1932-1934) about the Ursuline Convent in Columbia (S.C.), her family, life in Columbia (S.C.), and the burning of the city in 1865. Genealogical information includes notes on John Magrath, father of W.J. and A.G. Magrath, and other Magrath family members, as well as typewritten transcriptions of family Bible entries.
