

An illustration of Revolutionary War soldiers in blue uniforms celebrating on a battlefield. Some soldiers have their arms raised in the air, and a cannon is visible in the foreground. The scene is set against a backdrop of a battle with ships in the distance.

Speak Up: Using Primary Sources to Engage Students

A Professional Development Workshop offered spring & summer 2017

- Tailored for 8th grade social studies teachers (meets standards 8-2 and 8-3)
- Developed by the South Carolina Historical Society
- Sponsored by a Teaching with Primary Sources grant from the Library of Congress

Goals of this Workshop

- Increase access to and use of primary sources in the classroom
- Establish best practices and effective ways for teaching with primary sources
- Participants will create their own lesson plans using the tools, techniques, and sources shared with them

For More Information

- Visit our webpage: <http://schistory.org/explore/education/teaching-with-primary-sources-workshop/>
- To book this free workshop, contact SCHS Education Coordinator Ashley Darland at ashley.darland@schsonline.org