Other items include an agreement (1917) between James S. Farnum and James Sotille and other papers concerning the New Charleston Hotel Company.

BOXES 19-22

0152.05.06 Mitchell & Smith.
F.W. Ford legal papers, 1869-1904 (bulk 1897-1902)

1 linear ft.

Papers chiefly consist of legal documents, including complaints, answers, and opinions, correspondence, and other items pertaining to the case of S.M. Ward and Company (St. Julien M. Lachicotte and A.A. Springs, copartners) v. Frederick W. Ford. These date between 1898 and 1901.

Included are four pamphlets (1897-1901?) relating to the case and one galley proof of a related pamphlet; and copies of an agreement (1898) between S.M. Ward and Co. and F.W. Ford and A.M. Manigault concerning the use of White Oak and Kinloch creeks.

Papers also include legal documents, including complaints and answers, financial records, correspondence, and other items (1897-1904) pertaining to the case of Frederick W. Ford v. Arthur M. Manigault, a dispute over an agreement between the two men concerning Ford's oversight of Manigault's Bowman Plantation, Ford's salary and financial interest, and the use of workers from Ford's Rice Hope and Bear Hill plantations at Bowman Plantation.

Financial records (1898-1902) include check stub books; plantation accounts, including a [Woodside] Plantation account book kept by R.M. Doar (1900-1901); Lynchfield [Plantation] store accounts; invoices and accounts of A.M. Manigault; F.W. Ford invoices, receipts, and accounts; a Bowman Plantation stock and receipt book; a "mill book" (1898-1901) listing workers, their days worked, and wages; and rice toll sheets and invoices (1898-1902) for rice of A.M. Manigault milled at the Georgetown Rice Milling Company and sold by William P. Cook of New York (N. Y.).

Correspondence (1897-1904) includes letters between F.W. Ford at Annandale [Plantation] concerning workers, tenants, erection of buildings, rice fields, plantation conditions, and other matters; correspondence of A.M. Manigault, F.W. Ford, Henry A.M. Smith, Mitchell & Smith, and others regarding a dispute over right of way through Rice Hope, Woodside, and Newland plantations to Bear Hill Plantation, a floodgate on Kinloch Creek, and the two lawsuits. There is also a letterpress copybook (1897-1899) of A.M. Manigault; an (unrelated?) letter dated 1878, from A.H. Ford to H.A.M. Smith; an (unrelated?) letter (1869 May 26) to Porter & Conner from Paul T. Horry (executor of the estate of E.S. Horry) at North Santee concerning a tract of land belonging to the estate of Elias Horry (1773-1834); a letter (1898 Aug. 2) to Smythe, Lee & Frost (Charleston, S.C.) from [P.] Dismukes (Tenn.) regarding land near Lynchfield and Annville plantations (Georgetown County, S.C.); and letters (1898) between Claudian B. Northrop (Charleston, S.C.), William M. Atkinson (a Winchester, Va. attorney and judge), and Florence C. Trenholm (Annandale, S.C.) concerning Pine Grove Plantation (Georgetown County, S.C.).

Also included is a memorandum (ad.) "for Mr. Northrop" concerning Annandale, Ravenel, Annville, Lynchfield, and other properties owned by William Miles Hazzard (husband of Emily St. Pierre Trenholm); and A plat, dated November 5, 1902, establishing the lines between lands of William Deas and lands of A.M. Manigault in Georgetown County, South Carolina. (See oversize box for Collections 152 and 153.).

In the case of S.M. Ward and Co. v. F.W. Ford, all the parties were Georgetown County (S.C.) rice planters. Plaintiffs alleged that Ford, having control over the banks of the North Santee River and its canals and creeks, caused the rice fields of Woodside Plantation (owned by S.M. Ward and Co.) to be overflowed and rendered useless for cultivation. Ford owned the adjoining Rice Hope Plantation. In these papers "Bowman Plantation" is also referred to as the Bowman property, which seemed to be formed by Annville and Lynchfield plantations.

Correspondence, 1874-1919 (bulk 1875-1913)

20 linear ft.

Charleston, S.C. law firm In 1877 Julian A. Mitchell (1836-1907), who had earlier practiced law with William Whaley (1817-1879) and William D. Clancy (b. ca. 1835), formed a partnership with Henry A.M. Smith. Julian A. Mitchell's son Julian Mitchell (1867-1960) and grandson Julian Mitchell (1897-1985) succeeded him as the partners in the firm of Mitchell & Smith, and later, Mitchell & Horlbeck. Frederick H. Horlbeck joined the firm of Mitchell & Smith around 1908, and Henry A.M. Smith continued as a partner in the firm until 1911, when he was appointed to a federal judgeship for the eastern district of South Carolina. His son, John Julius Pringle Smith (b. 1887), was also a member of the firm of Mitchell & Smith. Around 1919 the firm became Mitchell & Horlbeck.

Correspondence of the 1870s, 1880s, and 1890s, chiefly incoming letters, concerns the settlement of estates and French spoliation claims and other legal business and cases handled by Julian Mitchell, Sr. and Mitchell & Smith; business interests (in phosphate companies and other ventures) of Julian Mitchell, Sr. and Henry A.M. Smith; Julian Mitchell's activities and concerns as a commissioner of schools (statewide and local; includes information on school curricula) and as a plantation owner; family and personal affairs; and other matters. Figuring prominently during this period is correspondence regarding the legal and financial affairs of the South Carolina Railroad (reorganized in 1881 as the South Carolina Railway Co.), much of it from Henry P. Talmadge (company president) and Daniel H. Chamberlain, who became receiver for the company. Also of note are letters (1875) concerning the execution of a African-American man by Confederate troops near Murrells Inlet in 1863; letters (late 1870s and beyond) concerning the estate of George A. Trenholm; and a humorous drawing of a starving lawyer included with a letter (1887 June 20) from Henry P. Butler.

Beginning in the late 1890s there are more frequent references to state and national politics as well as Henry A.M. Smith's historical and scientific pursuits. Up to 1907 there are frequent letters to Julian Mitchell, Sr. (and Jr.?) from M.M. Seabrook concerning Mitchell's Edisto Island plantation, Swallow Bluff which Seabrook managed; thereafter Seabrook corresponds with Julian Mitchell, Jr. (1867-1960) and Henry A.M. Smith until sometime in 1910.

Correspondence of the 1900s includes many letters concerning the legal and financial affairs of numerous phosphate and railroad companies and other businesses including the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., the Tampa Fertilizer Co. (Fla.), the Charleston, S.C. Mining and Manufacturing Co., Woodstock Hardwood and Spool Manufacturing Co., Germofert Manufacturing Co., Tilghman Phosphate Co., Navy Yard Home Corp., and the American Mahogany Company. Julian Mitchell, Jr.'s personal correspondence includes many letters to him from automobile manufacturers and auto parts makers including B.F. Goodrich Co., Michelin Tire Co., and the Premier Motor Manufacturing Co. (Indianapolis, Ind.).

Frequent correspondents include Augustine T. Smythe and numerous other lawyers and law firms in South Carolina and elsewhere, Langdon Cheves, A.M. Manigault, William Elliott, Charles D. Pierce (Pierce Ironworks, Long Island, N. Y.), R.N. Gourdin Smith, Townsend Mikell, August Kohn, A.S. Salley, Gustavus M. Middleton, T. Moultrie Mordecai, William E. Earle (Washington, D.C.), B.R. Riordan, and F.M. Mitchell (Edisto Island, S.C.). Other correspondents include George A. Trenholm & Son, Riordan & Dawson, F.W. Wagener, Augustus Sachteleben (1886 July), R. Tilghman Smith, Samuel T. Atkinson (Kingstree, S.C.), R. de la Steyrie (France), Robert S. Pringle (Sumter, S.C.), E.L. Trenholm, William Whaley, William H. Brawley, J.E. Luten (Fla.), John H. Devereaux, Rev. DJ. Jenkins (Jenkins Orphanage), William A. Courtenay, W.L. Beckett (Edisto Island, S.C.), Charles C. Jones (Augusta, Ga.), Benjamin R. Stuart (1882), author Ludwig Lewisohn (mostly 1909), Claudian B. Northrop, ornithologist Arthur T. Wayne, Charles P. Alston, F.W. Ford (a Georgetown County rice planter), J.T. Gantt (S.C. Secretary of State), B.M. Baruch, Barnett A. Elzas, Thomas R. Waring, W.W. Ball, U.S Representative Richard S. Whaley, B.R. Tillman, Marie N. Buckman (U.S. secretary, Egypt Exploration Fund), John J. Dargan, W.B. Chisolm, R.G. Rhett, and Dr. A.C. McClennan.

Scattered throughout the correspondence are miscellaneous legal documents, printed material, and other items.
