Biographical/Historical note: The earliest dissenting congregation in South Carolina, this church was formerly known as the Independent or Congregational (or Presbyterian) Church. It was founded in 1681 and was attended by both black and white members until 1867, when the black members left to form Plymouth Congregational Church. The present church building was erected in 1892.

Scope and content: Records consist of church business meeting minutes (1828-1913); six bound volumes (1732-1972) containing records of the corporation; constitution, by-laws, and articles of faith (1814?); two typewritten transcriptions of church histories written in 1853 and 1892; financial records (1777-1972) including accounts, daybooks, pew rent ledgers, building fund records, and the Sarah B. Stevens fund records; membership records (1784-1962) including rolls (for both black and white members) and registers for baptisms, deaths, burials, and marriages; lists of tombstone inscriptions; visitors' register (1937-1944); records of church organizations including the Colporteur Society (1848-1851), Dew Drop Society (1875-1882), Do Your Share Club (1921-1974), the Ladies Home Missionary Society (1857-1966), and the Clergy Society (1789-1949); Sunday school records (1885-1941) including attendance and membership rolls, reports, and minutes of the Sunday School Council meetings; Sunday school library records (1878-1900); photographs (ca. mid-20th century) of the church's exterior; and other items.

Other items include correspondence principally relating to obtaining and releasing ministers and transferring memberships; minutes and reports of meetings; financial records; a paper (1840) written by Job Palmer commending the Christian life to his descendants and reviewing his life and association with the church for over 60 years; a marriage agreement (1849) between H.W. Mitchell and Eliza M. Gantt regarding title to her slaves; agreements and other documents concerning the renovation of the church building (1852-1853); extensive reports (1850s) on the Laurel Street Mission; records (1876) of a disagreement in the church regarding the relationship of the Sunday school to the church; and a plan (1960, oversize) of the church cemetery, showing locations and names of those buried there.
